Text:

(Globalization is the biggest change to the world order. It presents a paradox in light of the tendency toward regionalization in world trade and investment, and the emergence of the three economic super blocks, the Asia pacific, North America and the European Economic Community. The third world countries and regions in Africa, Latin America and elsewhere are left out of the action). This situation causes the fundamental problems that face Africa, which is forgotten and ignored. Globalization has much to do with the new world order. Since the end of the cold war and the fall of Berlin Wall, large scientific projects are now based on international collaborations involving most world powers. These collaborations cover not only the design, but also run the construction and operation phases. Scientists, like other cultural and economical actors have to adapt and organize their work in this environment. They also need to learn how to convince public opinion, offering information and transparency.
